One Stop Medical Center/Shu Cosmetic Surgery Receives Renewal of Accreditation from the Institute of Medical Quality (IMQ)

Summary: One Stop Medical Center/Shu Cosmetic Surgery in Twin Cities recently received the prestigious 3-year IMQ renewal certification for their high quality ambulatory surgical facility.

Minneapolis, MN (September 2014) – One Stop Medical Center/Shu Cosmetic Surgery recently received an updated renewal accreditation by the Institute for Medical Quality (IMQ) that assures their patients are receiving the highest level of care. 3-year accreditation is the longest term that an ambulatory surgical facility can get from IMQ.

“It’s an honor to be recognized as a top-quality surgical facility. We are extremely pleased to have received a renewal of IMQ accreditation,” said Dr. Steven Shu, owner and surgeon of Shu Cosmetic Surgery and One Stop Medical Center. “We work extremely hard to uphold the highest standards of patient care. For our patients, this serves as validation for our rigorous standards of safety, professionalism and quality care by our clinic.”

The Institute for Medical Quality certification is a complicated, lengthy process that serves to ensure all accredited surgery centers and operating rooms are providing high quality, safe surgical care. The IMQ Ambulatory Care Review Program includes a rigorous review of the facility’s clinical staff credentials, patient medical record-keeping practices, calibration, and maintenance of medical equipment and other safety measures. Facilities are also evaluated on-site by physician peers before a final decision is rendered by the IMQ Ambulatory Care Review Committee.

“We all strive to make sure our medical and cosmetic patients are receiving the best care possible in our clinic. From a warm, welcoming environment to our bedside manner to the innovative surgical procedures we provide, One Stop Medical Center/Shu Cosmetic Surgery has it all,” said Dr. Steven Shu.
